DONALD BRYAN

In Daniel Frohman's Production.

"The Smugglers"

The title suggests a strong melodrama, with an abundance of thrilling and exciting incidents, but instead it is a high-class society comedy, like all good Paramount Productions.

Zeppelin Observation Car.

For a description of the observation car itself I cannot do better than give that of the man who first chanced upon it while out rabbit hunting. "When I looked through the hedges," he said, "I saw this queer-looking thing with its nose in the ground among the stubble. It had evidently fallen lightly, skimming over the ground for several yards. The cable trailing off across the field out of sight. I guessed, it might have been left by the enemy, and so cocked my gun while I looked to see if anybody was at home."

"It was a snug box of aluminum, shaped like a headless fish. Into its blunt end was let two small windows of mica. There were two more such windows at side, bottom and top. Each window was curtained, and between them—on the bottom of the car—was a mattress upon which the observer had lain. By slipping a curtain he could look out in any direction he wished. Within easy reach from mattress were a compass, clock, glasses, three or four electric batteries, and a sort of a shelf holding some wire-bound equipment of various kinds. Two electric-light bulbs were so placed as to throw light in any direction. Into a part of the fore end was stuffed some sort of grass."

—By Lewis R. Freeman, in the January Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Reproved.

"Good morning, Nora," said Mrs. Rogers. "Was the grocer's boy impudent to you again this morning when you phoned the order in?" "He was that," complained Nora, "but I fixed him this time. I sez: 'Who in blazes do you think you're talkin' to? This is Mrs. Rogers.'"—Harper's Magazine.

Hard Command to Obey.

Josephine is two and one-half years old. The morning after her father had taken off his mustache when he came into the bedroom to play with her, she sat up in bed, studied him carefully for a moment, and said in an indignant tone, "where is it? Put it back."

PRINCESS TO-DAY.

MILLIONAIRE LOSES PEARLS.

It all happens in the Famous Players Comedy, "The Smugglers," with Donald Bryan as the unfortunate millionaire.

John Battleby Watts, a wealthy promoter and breakfast food manufacturer touring Europe with his new wife, loses partly through carelessness and more partly through foolishness his wife's twenty-thousand-dollar necklace.

What did he do? He immediately bought her a duplicate for twenty cents, expecting to have the other one in a few days, and to his delight his wife did not realize that she had been deceived. But, alas, they are to leave for America, and no trace of the string of pearls! What would you do to prevent the customs inspectors from disclosing the false jewels to your wife? Sidney Olcott, who is the director of many notable Famous Players productions, is responsible for the production of this screamingly humorous photoplay on the Paramount Program. The Princess will show "The Smugglers" today.

PRINCESS TO-MORROW.

Admirers of Nance O'Neil, and their name is legion, are to be given an opportunity of seeing the celebrated emotional artist in a dual role, the new Lubin photoplay feature, "The Flames of Johannis."

The dual role of Marika, a foundling and Zarah, an evil old gypsy, is handled by Miss O'Neil in the manner that gained for her the foremost rank among emotional actresses.

SPREADING LOS ANGELES.

Los Angeles is the largest city in the United States. Someone will doubtless arise to controvert this statement by a show of figures. But the fact remains that Los Angeles is the largest city—in the matter of area. Through recent annexations the City of the Angels now includes a territory of 337.92 square miles, against 314.75 for New York, 198 for Chicago, 129 for Philadelphia and 53.29 for Minneapolis. The haste of the suburbs of Los Angeles to get in under the city limits, where the taxing is good, is due to the desire to get the city's water. Water in California is liquid happiness, and Los Angeles has recently completed a $23,000,000 aqueduct that brings the best of water from the mountains. The city is not permitted by the laws to sell water outside of the limits, hence the desire of the outlying districts to get in. This 337.92 miles of area in Los Angeles helps to explain the 550,000 population now claimed for the city. As long as the water and the climate hold out, these figures will continue to grow, till the saturation point comes.

THE NEST EGG.

"Say, Jim," said the friend of the taxicab driver, standing in front of the vehicle, "there's a purse lying on the floor of your cab."

The driver looked carefully around and then whispered:

"Sometimes when business is bad I put it there and leave the door open. It's empty, but you've no idea how many people jump in for a short drive when they see it."

Importance of Color.

Color is a wonderful thing. It goes to the soul of you like music, whether you know it or not. If I could have my way, every person in the world should study color harmony, through which they would see the world transformed—and maybe help in the doing. —Exchange.

NEGRO WINS BIG VERDICT

Against Memphis Posse, Right to Defend Home Is Upheld By Judge and Jury.

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 22.—Upholding the contention that "a man's home is his castle and he has a right to defend it," which Judge John E. McCall emphasized in his charge, a jury in Federal Court here to-day awarded Mathew Harris, a negro, $22,500 compensatory and $20,000 punitive damages in his suit against John A. Riechman former Sheriff of Shelby county, and members of a Sheriff's posse.

Harris who sued for $100,000, was seriously injured when his home was dynamited in an attempt to dislodge him after he fired on the posse, which was searching for one of his relatives.

Harris testified that he was not aware of the identity of the possemen when he resisted their effort to search his home.

Riechman was exempted from the verdict for punitive damages, as it was shown that he was not actually a member of the posse.

December Farm and Fireside.

The two December issues of farm and fireside will contain many things of interest and profit to the farmer. "Where Brush Became Coin" tells how a hill changed from foul thicket to rich pasture. "Care of Brood Sows" informs how a feeding schedule brings strong, healthy litters. "Thrift and a Future" tells something about dairying. "Top-Notch Achievements" is about the city man on the farm; "The Poker's Last Squeal" is an article on butchering; and other good features are "Buying a Typewriter for the Farm," "Making Insect Models," "Delivering a Mule" and "A Rolling Stone."

In addition to the articles, there is a tale of Christmas called "Kidnaping a Cook," and in the December 16th issue, "The Blue Envelope," a novel by Sophie Kerr that has been made into a moving picture as well, will begin.

The short, snappy editorials, the health talks, and the many suggestions to farmers and their wives which are scattered through the pages will be found helpful and interesting.
